SNAPSHOTS OF SALLY.

BY MOLLY M'MASTER.

When Effreds returned from her two weeks' holiday at the seashore she had acquired a wonderful by of freckles, a very sunburned neck and aroms and many rolls of exposed kedah films.

Snapehots were Effreda's hobby. Her small wags from the department store did not permit her to indulge as freely as she would have liked, yet she managed to take considerable pleasure during her annual fortnight sway from the ribbon counter.

few weeks until her savings permitted her the extravagance of having her films developed and printed. Elifreds chafed at the délay, but that state did not raise her salary nor give her more pin money. She did, however, curtail her luncheon orders and by the end of three weeks she found enough in her small iron bank to pay for the developing of at least one roll of films.

Effreda was delighted on her way home from the photographer's that she had stepped into this particular kodak-shop, for a most engaging young manhad served her from behind the counter. She decided, then and there, to take all her films to him. Effreda was wont to try various photographers in her effort to find a good one.

She had, in this instance, discovered an exceptionally satisfactory one. When "My pictures have never been so per-fect," she told the good-looking young man. "There is not a failure among them."

"Your grouping is very artistic," said Derrick Vane, and thought it a pity that Elfreda might not use herself as a model. He found her smile a fascinating thing, since it brought into play two dimples. "The light effect is excellent on some of these heads."
"And these are not my most choice ones," admitted Elfreda with a soft blush. "I was in doubt as to what kind of work you would do, so I brought in my least attractive roll of films."

"And the others?" laughed Vane.

"I will bring them as soon as I save

When dentially that he believes that in the future war correspondents will be com-pletely tabooed. Heretofore they have been considered somewhat of a necessary nulsance, but during the present war they have been arrested and put in fall every time they are found. Many of the correspondents in Paris and London have wired their newspapers in New York that they know very little about what is going on and are finding it harder each day. The censors are grow-ing surly and several high-class writers were driven out of the office of one in London the other day.

Clare Briggs, the cartoonist, has taken a country home out on Long Island and has a servant girl who watches out for the best bargains possible in marketing. The other day the girl found a good deal of cream on a bottle of milk, which had been standing over night and when the servant said: "Look here, I have never seen anything like this sefore on your milk."

The driver looked at it for a moment, scratched his head and replied: "Well, I don't just know what it is myself, but you can throw it out and Pil give you a fresh bottle in its place."

The last word in producing moving pictures is expected to result from the organization of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, just organized. It shows more than anything else that the big theatrical magnates are convinced the movie has come to stay. The organiza-tion expects to produce the best play possible with the best talent that money est plays can secure. Among those interested are Daniel Frohman, Charles Frohman, Da-yid Belasco, Jesse L. Laskey, Adop Zu-kor. Hobart Bosworth and others. W. Hodkinson is president and Hirar
